President's Message New Year's Irresolution

By NEIL KINKOPF • PRESIDENT@INMANPARK.ORG

You, dear reader, are no doubt aware that I strive to be presidential at all times. When I learned that President Trump, my role model in these Stormy times, recently underwent a mental fitness exam, I headed straight for my own physician. I am happy to report that your Dear Leader passed the test. I guess that makes me a very stable genius. But as the pop sensation Panic at the Disco (Inman Park's First Kid is a big fan) has noted, "crazy equals genius." By the property of transitivity, then, I am reliably crazy.

The coming month promises to test our neighborhood's stability, not to mention our sanity. We are scheduled to consider and vote on the proposal for Villa de Grip. At the time of this writing, I am informed that the developers have substantially modified their plans. The developers, however, have given no indication as to what those changes might be, so I will ask you, dear reader, to keep an eye on the website for updates. We will also send out notice of developments through our various social media platforms.

As if Villa de Grip weren't stress test enough, the drafters of the plan entitled Moreland Corridor 10-Year Update will be presenting their study this month. The geniuses in the neighborhood will not be fooled by this innocuous title. In fact, the study is a fatberg of highly consequential (not to mention controversial) proposals for our neighborhood. The centerpiece of the plan is to have Invest Atlanta build a parking deck on Bass Field for the benefit of the surrounding commercial properties. But that is by no means the only major proposal in the plan. In connection with the parking deck, the plan proposes the construction of a new road that would extend Washita south across Euclid Avenue to run behind the houses on Austin all the way through to Moreland. This new road would emerge onto Moreland between Bass Field and the Wrecking Bar. The plan also calls for a major development to be constructed on the MARTA parking lot. Finally, the plan embraces the pedestrian bridge over Moreland at Freedom Parkway. We have posted a link to the plan on the IPNA website and I strongly encourage you to read it. (Fair warning, though: it is 133 pages.)

These proposals are so important for the neighborhood, I am tempted to call them existential. Which side of the crazy/genius line any one of them falls on is a matter that commands our close and searching deliberation. Your first chance—I will do everything I can to make sure it is not the last—to be heard comes this month. I hope you will join us. M

Subversive Cross-stitch

March 4 • 12:30 p.m. – 3:00 p.m. • Museum of Design Atlanta • museumofdesign.org

Cross-stitch is a type of embroidery in which the needlework creates images that look pixelated. Traditionally a way for society to measure a woman's marriageability, cross-stitch has recently become a vehicle for craftivism (craft activism) and used to assert diverse identities and demand social change. Grab a needle and thread and fabric and join us as we co-opt traditional designs or create entirely new ones that command attention and express your beliefs. The activity fee covers everything you need to create and bring home your own awesome cross stitch: 4" hoop, AIDA cloth, needle, threader, embroidery floss, and graph paper. The fee also includes admission to MODA's current exhibition.

2018 Inman Park Festival & Tour of Homes Artwork Winner

By DIYA LUKE • FESTIVAL COMMITTEE CO-CHAIR, MARKETING • DMALARKAR@YAHOO.COM

Artists and designers are invited every year to submit a creation to be considered for the official artwork of the Inman Park Festival and Tour of Homes. This year's winning artwork is by Cooper Pierce, a fellow Inman Park resident.

The art reflects Cooper's interest in typography and old school sign painting. Cooper explains that he brought two main ideas together for this piece. "The art of the hand-drawn image is quickly fading away with digital media to where hand drawing is practically becoming a lost art. The other aspect to this year's design is the architecture of the neighborhood, which was the primary focus of the posters of the early Festivals in the 70's and 80's." As tempting as it may be, don't try to identify the home in this year's artwork. The house you see represents elements of Inman Park architecture, but isn't an homage to one particular home.

No Festival artwork would be complete without honoring our neighborhood mascot. "The butterfly is a symbol of rebirth and corresponds with spring," says Cooper. "Artistic liberties have been taken to modify the butterfly from the stylized neighborhood symbol to put more emphasis on the creature as a symbol of spring to correspond with the Festival."

Cooper is a professional architect, and enjoys drawing and art, so the Festival Design Contest is a natural outlet to pursue those interests. Cooper says, "I felt awkward about submitting a design being Festival Co-chair," a reference to the fact that Cooper and his wife Robbie are chairing the festival this year. However, the design competition is blindly judged and awarded, and Cooper recuses himself from voting any year that he submits an entry. This year, there were 21 entries, and the winning design was chosen from a short list of three finalists. Cooper's win is well-deserved, and you can look forward to seeing it on Festival merchandise and printed material. M

Lifelong Committee Update

BY CATHIE BERGER • LIFELONG@INMANPARK.ORG

The Lifelong Inman Park Committee works to incorporate the needs of older residents into all aspects of community planning, development, and living by supporting the IPNA board and its various committees. This committee's work is guided by the goals and policies contained in the Lifelong IP Plan which identified four focus areas and was approved by neighbors in July 2017.

Housing

The committee focuses on housing needs of interest to residents as they age. Efforts include:

- Exploring housing options
- Keeping home ownership affordable by addressing the effect of rising property values on property taxes
- Identifying aging-in-place home modifications available to historic neighborhood residents

Mobility and Accessibility

The committee continues providing support to the IP Sidewalks Committee. Efforts include:

- Supporting the installation of new sidewalks and utilizing funding allocated through the IP Sidewalk subsidy programs.
- Urging Atlanta officials to address the failing sidewalks along the public parks the city manages

Information and Services

The committee provides interesting, practical, and timely information sessions aimed at improving individual well-being and neighborhood quality of life. Efforts include:

- Identifying topics of common interest and concern
- Designing and scheduling informative presentations where neighbors can discuss issues and problem-solve (All neighbors are welcome to attend. Look for notices in this publication, at inmanpark.org, on Nextdoor, and in Yahoo! group emails.)

Social Engagement

The committee promotes social interaction. Efforts include:

- Organizing themed strolls that highlight the walkability of Inman Park
- Celebrating IP new sidewalks
- Offering Walkable Inman Park t-shirts

The Lifelong Inman Park Committee always seeks and welcomes new members. Email lifelong@inmanpark.org for more information.

Lifelong IP Information Sessions

BY NANCY MORRISON • LIFELONG@INMANPARK.ORG

December Lifelong Information Session - Safety and Security

Thom Abelew, IPNA Vice President of Public Safety, and IPNA Security Officer Tom Soukup provided updates on Inman Park Security Patrol (IPSP) operations and offered practical tips for making Inman Park a safer neighborhood. Thom Abelew, along with Chuck Clarke, also provided information for outdoor surveillance options such as Ring and Nest.

The IPSP recommends creating an "In Case of Emergency" contact on cell phones (under contact name ICE). ICE enables first responders, as well as hospital personnel to contact someone to obtain important medical or support information. Please support the IPSP by joining and keeping your annual membership up to date. More information can be found at www.inmanpark.org/security-patrol.

Presenters discussed and encouraged a Whistle Alarm Program that encourages residents to carry a small personal alarm on their keychain which can be easily activated when help is needed.

The presenters also provided these important safety tips:

- The IPSP covers an average of 40 to 50 hours a week and now includes car and bicycle patrols
- Call 911 first and then IPSP
- Don't leave anything in your car and unlock doors to prevent broken windows
- Proper training is essential for people housing firearms
- Neighbors are the best security asset
- Consider installing a security surveillance camera like Ring and Nest (recommended options)

Next month's Advocate will report on Lifelong's homeless information session. Plan to attend the second homeless presentation on Friday, March 2 at 10 a.m. at Inman Park Methodist Church.
